Recover 13 Bodies at Site of Mine Blast

RESCUERS SET PROBABLE TOLL OF 73 DEAD

54 Believed Still Entombed as Relief Stations Are Established Nearby.

BULLETIN

NEFFS — (INS) — Efforts to reach 58 victims still entombed in the explosion-wrecked Willow Grove mine encountered a new set-back today. Fresh air now penetrating the blast area caused slate falls which endangered rescuers and added to the debris.

(By International News Service)

NEFFS—Thirteen bodies of miners killed in the Willow Grove mine disaster were removed from the mine today, raising the known death toll to 19. It was believed that 54 other miners still entombed behind wreckage of a terrific gas explosion were dead.

Including two rescue workers killed shortly after the explosion late Saturday, the death toll was expected to be 73 lives.

It was reported that rescue workers had found 15 additional bodies in one sector of the mine far underground. These victims, according to reports reaching the surface, apparently sought shelter together and were overcome by deadly "black damp" mine gas.

All efforts have been concentrated upon reaching the victims, hence investigations have been deferred, but authorities held to the theory that the explosion was set off when miners drilled into an abandoned gas well.

Mine Supt. John Richards and Howard Sanders, tipple boss, were fatally gassed when they dashed into the mine in a rescue attempt immediately following the explosion.

Bearing mute testimony to the violence of the blast, the bodies of the miners were so mangled that mine officials were having difficulty in identifying them. Relatives of the dead men were called upon to assist in the identification.

A mine spokesman said that the rescuers could not reach the other 56 bodies before nightfall or possibly tomorrow morning. The blast was much more severe

Wife of FDR, Jr., Critically Hurt Riding Near Home

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., wife of the president's son, suffered a fractured pelvis and brain concussion in a fall from a horse while riding with the Farmington hunt near here today.

An attending physician at University hospital, where Mrs. Roosevelt was brought for treatment, said her condition was satisfactory.

The accident occurred as Mrs. Roosevelt attempted to take her mount over a picket fence at "Highlands," the home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Funsten. The horse fell on the rider. She was rendered unconscious.

Young Roosevelt was attending classes at the University of Virginia law school when he was informed of the accident. His wife is the former Ethel Du Pont.

Beck Starts 5 to 30-Year Term Today

Judge Lectures Child Molester Who Admits Kidnap Charge.

Sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory for a five-to-30 year term yesterday afternoon, George Beck, 25, confessed Mansfield child molester, was to be taken to the reformatory this afternoon to begin his sentence.

Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston imposed the maximum penalty when Beck pleaded guilty yesterday to an indictment for kidnaping one of the 17 counts that had been returned against him last week by the grand jury. Beck entered his plea through Atty. Raymond J. Brown, his counsel.

The court commends you for making a confession of your acts that relieves the minds of a lot of Mansfield mothers." Judge Huston told Beck. "Every mother ought to feel that her child is as safe on the city streets as at home."

"You are being sent to the reformatory so children in Mansfield will be safe," Judge Huston continued. "When you get there you can either go downward or start building up your character and mind."

Asked when he first started luring small girls into his automobile, Beck replied, "Last June, but I can't remember what happened that made me do it, I just couldn't help it."

Picked Up 13 Girls.

Beck, who admitted picking up at least 13 small girls in Mansfield and Crestline since last summer, was found sane last week by three examining physicians. None of the children had been assaulted, although it was understood Beck was indicted secretly for attempting to attack one of them.

Beck is the second molester to be convicted and sent to a penal institution from the county in the past three months. George Call, 30-year-old Sharon township WPA worker, entered the Ohio penitentiary Jan. 13 to begin a three-to-20 year term for assaulting a Bellville high school girl and attempting to attack several other girls.

JAIL 2 GIRLS

Policeman Finds 15-Year-Olds Trying to Steal Auto.

Two 15-year-old Mt. Vernon girls were turned over to probation authorities of Knox county today after they had spent the night in city jail here.

They were apprehended yesterday by police after they had "looked over" cars parked in the Central park vicinity and had decided on the one they wanted to steal.

A merchant on North Diamond street notified Patrolman Howard Schuck that he believed the girls were looking for a car to steal.

Schuck arrived just as one of the girls was backing a car out of the parking space and before the second girl had got in the car. The girl in the car got away but Schuck took the other girl in custody and notified patrol cars to look for the stolen car and the girl.

She was later found on the street with the keys to the car in her possession. She had parked the car on West Fourth street. The girls admitted, officers said, they had planned to "beat it out of town" in the stolen car, which belonged to W. O. Crall, R. D. 6.

Two others who jumped from the third floor suffered minor injuries. Fifty guests fled in their night clothing. Six were overcome by smoke. The 60-room hotel was destroyed. The cause of the fire had not been determined.

'Contract Murder' Total Expected to Reach Thirty

Trigger Men 'Sing' to District Attorney Revealing Ramifications of 'Death-for-Profit' Syndicate.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The contract killings of the "murder syndicate" may reach 30, it was indicated today while terrified trigger men "sang" to District Attorney William O'Dwyer, telling of paying their own expenses and sometimes emerging with a profit of only $1.

Fifteen murders have been confessed, checked by O'Dwyer's assistants in Kings county (Brooklyn) and the slayers accounted for. Many murderers were slain by their fellow-mobsters as the gang decimated its membership to dispose of trigger men who knew too much.

Two new murders were added to the list, those of Samuel Silverman, found shot dead in an auto in July, 1937, and Irving Ashkenas, taxicab driver killed Sept. 5, 1936.

Ramifications of the murder gang's activities spread from the squalid Brownsville section of Brooklyn to Hollywood, where Irving Cohen, movie bit player also known as Jack Cohen and "Big Gangi," was held without bail as a fugitive from justice wanted for murder in Brooklyn.

O'Dwyer said it was established that the ring had connections with the underworld in other cities, particularly Detroit, where the Purple gang flourished for many years.

NINE SUNK

British Announce Loss of Ships by Allies Totals 23,000 Tons.

LONDON—(AP)—The Admiralty announced today that nine British and neutral ships were lost by enemy action in the week ended Sunday at midnight. Tonnage totaled 23,992.

Most of the casualties were listed as due to "illegal" mines, with only four ships sunk by German submarines since Feb 24.

The opinion was expressed that submarines which have escaped destruction have been recalled temporarily.

The week's losses were described as three British ships, totaling 5,449 tons; two French, 3,172 tons; and four neutrals, 15,321 tons, none in convoy.

An admiralty source said the weekly average for 28 weeks of the war was 12 ships totaling 42,000 tons.

Reveals $2,300,000 Spent On Highway Jobs in Richland Area

Thirty-nine construction projects, totaling more than $2,300,000, were placed under contract last year in the six counties, including Richland, comprising the Ashland division of the state highway department as compared with only 19 projects valued at $400,000 in 1938, Hal G. Sours, chief state highway engineer, said last night at the division highway conference in Ashland.

Sours, who is also president of the American Road Builders' association, was the principal speaker at the conference which was attended by about 25 Mansfielders.

Sours recommended the extension of state routes in Ohio, improvement of secondary roads in the state highway system, and the immediate replacement of 4,000 bridges of more than a 10-foot span and 30,000 bridges of less than 10-foot span as a safety measure.

4 'Ring Leaders' Brought Back to Prison After Staging 'Sitdown' Protest.

A "sit-down" strike by about a third of the Ohio State reformatory prisoners stationed at the Grafton prison farm was broken up today by squads of sheriff's deputies and police assisting regular guards.

Notified of the revolt, Supt. Arthur L. Glattke of the reformatory went to Grafton and returned the four "ring leaders" in the disturbance here. Their trusty privileges will be removed and they will be required to serve additional time, Glattke said.

Returned here were Walter Ziemiecki, 29, of Cuyahoga county, serving 10 to 25 years for robbery; Frank Miller, 30, Cuyahoga county, serving a one-to-15-year term for burglary and larceny; Liborio Arena, 17, Stark county, one to 15 years for breaking and entering, and Floyd Kessler, 26, Stark county, one to 15 years for burglary and larceny.

The prisoners, demanding certain privileges and protesting the serving of too much of the same kind of food refused to go to work.

Catholic Priest Aids In Fight To Restore Jewish Youth.

SAN FRANCISCO —(INS)— Two bottles of a Catholic priest's blood were rushed by airliner from San Francisco to Chicago today in an effort to save the life of a 12-year-old Jewish boy.

The priest, Father Paul, assistant pastor of St. Boniface's church, had read a newspaper account of the plight of young Sheldon Bellafsky, lying near death in Chicago's Mt. Sinai hospital.

The boy had been stricken with staphylococus septicemia, a deadly blood disease, and was in desperate need of a blood transfusion.

MAYOR ORDERS 72-HOUR WEEK FOR FIREMEN

Tells Chief to Reduce 84-Hour Week to Comply With Law; Averts Threat of Suit.

Mayor William J. Locke today ordered Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger to take immediate steps to reduce the working hours of city firemen from the present 84-hour week to 72 hours.

The order was made to provide local compliance with a new state law which limits the working hours of firemen. The city had been threatened with a mandamus suit by the Ohio Industrial Relations commission for failure to comply.

Seeburger was directed to make the necessary adjustments after Mayor Locke had received a legal opinion from City Solicitor Marion D. Ward in which Ward held that the law specifically calls for a 72-hour week.

"It is the duty of the chief of the fire department to comply with the statute," Ward's opinion said. "In order to avoid a mandamus suit, the law, of course, must be complied with."

The matter of working hours for firemen has been a problem of the city administration since Jan. 1 and since the reduction order has been made a new situation has arisen in determining what steps must be taken to meet the state requirements.

Three Courses Open.

Mayor Locke pointed out to Seeburger today that there were three courses open; first that city council obtain the money from some source to meet the cost of four additional firemen; second that one station and equipment in the city be abandoned and the staff used to fill up the other platoons; and third, reduce the present salaries of firemen.

Locke pointed out that if a station or equipment is abandoned it will automatically raise the fire insurance rates in Mansfield.

When city council first considered the problem, members said that there was no city fund available for increasing the cost of operating the fire department.

In his letter to Seeburger the mayor asked that he be notified in writing of whatever course of action the chief decides on before it is put into effect.

Ward told the mayor today that the state law enacted last fall, specifies that city firemen must be divided into platoons and that each platoon may not be on duty more than 24 consecutive hours, with not more than a total of 72 hours in any work week.

SPRING? BRRR!

It'll Arrive Tomorrow But So Will Snow, Colder Weather.

If the weatherman's forecast is correct spring will come in with ear muffs and mittens tomorrow.

The vernal equinox, which is the calendar opening of spring, is at 1:24 p. m. tomorrow. That doesn't mean however that there will be balmy breezes and a concert of bird songs, with jonquils springing up hither and yon.

On the contrary, the weather forecaster says that today's cloudiness will be followed by light snows in the northern portion of the state, accompanied by falling temperatures, which will continue through Wednesday and Thursday.

Yesterday's occasional glimpse of the sun warmed the thermometers up to 56 despite the showers, but during the night the temperature fell to 27. It was 40 at noon today.

Dissuades Nazi Leader in Talk At Brenner Pass

Press Disclaims Role of 'Permanent Peace Emissary' For Mussolini, Declares Italy Wants War Kept From Balkans.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Stephen Early, a presidential secretary, said today that on the basis of authoritative reports received by the American government, "peace headlines would appear to be very empty."

By PERCY WINNER
(INS Staff Correspondent)

ROME—Through his authorized press spokesman Premier Mussolini today disclaimed the role of "permanent peace emissary" in Europe.

At the same time, an unimpeachable authority informed this correspondent that in his conference with Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler at the Brenner pass yesterday, Il Duce averted the possibility of an immediate Nazi offensive on the western front.

Mussolini's renunciation of a 'permanent" mediation role was made known by Virginio Gayda, editor of the Giornale D'Italia, whose articles invariably reflect the mind of Mussolini.

"It is absurd and grotesque," Gayda wrote, "to attribute to Il Duce the permanent role of peace emissary, mediator of the European conflict or journeyor among the capitals of Europe in the cause of pacification.

"No government has yet asked for such mediation.

"The war promises to be long, arduous and complex, full of sudden and unforeseen developments."

By dissuading Hitler from an immediate offensive, Mussolini succeeded in the main object of his visit to the Brenner pass, a highly-placed informant told International News Service.

If, however, Great Britain and France take the initiative and attempt to batter down the defenses of the west wall, strong Italian action in behalf of Germany may be anticipated, it was said.

The source of this information made clear that Mussolini's real purpose in meeting Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler at the Italo-German frontier yesterday was to ensure a further breathing space for peace efforts, which would be vitiated automatically if the Nazis opened their long-awaited offensive.

In addition to persuading Hitler against the advisability of an offensive while peace is still possible, Mussolini agreed on Italy's behalf to take all possible measures to prevent extension of war into the Balkans and the Near East.

In this connection, authoritative diplomatic circles re-emphasized that yesterday's conference had an important bearing on future Italo-Russian relations. Possibility of a joint German-Russian-Italian declaration guaranteeing peace in those areas was foreseen.

As a counter-balance to this scheme, which while not actually extending the Rome-Berlin axis to

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain today declared that Britain was ready to meet anything that may arise from yesterday's historic meeting of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini at the Brenner pass.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Chamberlain disclosed in the house of commons today that Britain and France had planned an expeditionary force of about 100,000 men to Finland.

Speaking to a packed and often cheering house, the prime minister said the expedition had been approved by the Allied supreme war council on Feb. 5 and was ready to leave at the beginning of March—two months before Field Marshal Baron Mannerheim, the Finnish commander, had asked for it to arrive.

Chamberlain said that Mannerheim in mid-January informed the British he did not require men then, as his resources were sufficient to last until the spring thaw.

Making a vigorous defense of the help Britain and France had offered and given Finland, Chamberlain declared:

"We felt we must be ready also to provide a force to come to the assistance of Sweden if she were attacked by Germany.

He declared that Germany had threatened Norway and Sweden with intervention if they gave assent to the passage of a British-French expeditionary force.

Making his first statement on the progress of the war since March 8, when he spoke of the Russian-Finnish peace, Chamberlain said:

"I wish I could say that further reflection since then had in any way modified our first impression that a great tragedy had occurred.

"But unhappily a closer exam-

ACTION: British Liners to Leave New York for War Duty

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—The British liners Queen Mary and Mauretania will be taken from their safe refuge here to carry British troops between Australia and Allied concentration points, probably in the Near East, it was reported authoritatively today.

The two vessels total 116,874 tons and could carry a full division of 38,000 soldiers with their equipment in a single voyage. British informants believed the two ships would transport troops from Australia and New Zealand to join the Antipodean forces landed last month at Aden, on the Red sea. They were expected to sail Thursday.

The Cunard White Star liner Antonia arrived unexpectedly yesterday with 770 men to make up the crews of the two ships. The 81,235-ton Queen Mary, queen of the British merchant fleet until completion of the Queen Elizabeth, the world's largest ship, which is docked alongside her at a Manhattan wharf, was being repainted a darker battleship gray today and 470 of the 770 men who arrived on the Antonia were taken immediately to her.

The other 300 men were assigned to the Mauretania.

There was no indication that the Queen Elizabeth would join the Queen Mary and Mauretania, but it was recalled the Elizabeth arrived in New York still incomplete.

All But Moron Can Write Letters

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Everyone who is not a thirty-third degree moron can learn to write a good letter. When the boy or girl friend is miles away a sprightly, well-written letter is an anchor to windward, which prevents straying.

I'm always glad to hear from readers. The more letters I get, the more pleased am I. Yet sometimes I wonder if girls and boys write to their sweethearts with the same "pale and wan" pencils with which they write to me. I put on my strongest pair of glasses and work as laboriously to decipher the communication as an archeologist facing Egyptian hieroglyphics.

Please don't misinterpret this hint. Write to me in pencil if you will, but please see that it's black enough to make a mark. But don't write to your best young man or girl friend with a pencil suffering with anemia. Ten to one, the beloved object will put it aside until there is plenty of time for deciphering the elusive characters. Often that time doesn't come.

Picking up the morning paper a day or two ago, I read the headline, "Mail Romance Lasts 50 Years." The story went on to say that He wrote Her two letters. In the second he proposed. She wrote Him two letters, and in the second she accepted. They met for the first time and were married in 1890. His letter was delightful; her answer even more delightful. And wonderful to relate, they wrote with good black ink, and no magnifying glasses were required to decipher the script. That was all there was to the courtship of Mr. and Mrs. John Mclack, who have just celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

There are so many effective assets that make for success, not only in love but in business, that are to be had for the asking and are so often overlooked. Everyone can have a good voice. Neatness, daintiness, is frequently the equivalent of beauty, and as you were reminded in the beginning, everyone who is not a positive moron can write a good letter.

Decent stationery can be bought at any Five-and-Ten. Pass up the pinks, greens and blues in favor of unlined cream or white paper. Invest in a bottle of ink and a good pen. And luck go with you. And then, perhaps, like Mr and Mrs. Melack, you will be celebrating your golden wedding fifty years from now, with someone you charmed as a correspondent.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I'll show you whether or not I'm 'yellow'," she fairly spat at me. "I'll go through with this thing if it kills me. You're not going to be able to blab to Uncle Dicky that I let you down. What do you want me to do first?"

I knew better than to give her any hint of softening, or let her suspect my supposed angry contempt had been only a ruse to rouse her temper and her spirt. That could come later. Just now I must keep her keyed upto fury.

"We'll iron out those two or three pieces which have troubled you most," I said calmly. "Just stand over there." I indicated the place with a pointing finger, and then took up the manuscript of the play.

"I'll cue you," I said unnecessarily. "Get ready!"

"I'm ready," she said between her teeth, and I gave her the cue for one of the speeches which had not come quite up to my hypercritical standard in some of her former rehearsals.

With the first word she uttered I realized that I once more had triumphed over her obsession that Philip Veritzen would succeed in the plot we believed he was concocting against her. Her voice was full of verve and she read the speech flawlessly. I made a single comment "Very good," when she had finished, and calmly directed her to go on with the other trial speeches. When I had pronounced the third "Very good!" I was conscious of a change in the emotional atmosphere. A glance from beneath my lowered eyelashes at Mary told me that her eyes no longer held fury, but speculative conjecture instead, and I was not surprised, when I said quietly, "Now, I'm ready to hear the complete reading," to have her flash across the room and catch me into a tempestuous embrace.

"You darling fraud!" she apostrophied, holding me at arm's-length. "You fooled me completely long enough to snap me out of my jitters. I'm angry at myself because I was so impudent to you, but I saw so red when you called me yellow that I didn't know what I was saying. But you will forgive me, won't you, darling, if I promise you I won't balk a single second more? I'll go through that rehearsal tomorrow at the top of my form, you see if I don't."

"I'll see that you do," I told her with an affectionate smile, "but just now I want you to put everything you have into this last 'top of your form' rehearsal. Just imagine that your father-in-law is sitting over there in the corner."

"Watch me!" Mary said tersely.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, March 20.

THE MOST advanced ideals and ambitious objectives are under excellent promise of fulfillment and attainment, according to strong lunar influences. It is a time for reaching toward high goals with assurance and initiative, although there may be disturbances, disruption and lack of support from expected sources. Elders or some tricky circumstances in connection with old associations may prove the testing factor.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year of eventual success in attaining some very ambitious purpose and high aim in spite of stubborn opposition, sudden upsets and the want of co-operation from desired individuals. Others just as powerful and more willing may step into the gap, if efficiency, important objectives and sincerity, together with personal popularity and prestige, prove convincing.

A child born on this day may have splendid talents and ingenuity, with high aims as well a good disposition and warm temperament, which will aid it in attracting powerful support in putting over its ambitions.

Have Manicure Tools Handy

By MME. QUI VIVE.

Much is to be said for and against the professional manicure. An expert, conscientious operator will put the pink finger sheaths in perfect condition without causing the slightest discomfort. She is gentle and thorough. A careless, poorly trained operator, hurrying along to get her tip and start her next appointment, can do harm. The cash customer departs with hurty fingers that won't get right and normal again in a month of Sundays.

Every woman should provide herself with the proper manicuring equipment in case the heavy date has come suddenly upon her. No time to rush out for beauty repairs. She can give herself a 15-minute cleanup treatment that will pass.

She will need a long flexible file of high grade steel and she should not economize when buying it. Unless the groves are fine she'll saw away at the nail eaves and get no place. The same rule holds good with manicuring scissors. Only high grade steel will carry a sharp edge and the blades must be so carefully adjusted that they won't spring.

Add to these two instruments a package of emery beveling files, an orangewood stick, cuticle cream, nail white and a bottle of polish.

Don't begin with a hand washing; the soaking will make the nails too soft for rapid shaping. Use the metal file, working from sides to center, forming a pleasing oval. Be careful not to cut into the flesh at the sides or burrow too far down. Pass the orangewood stick under the nail eave to bring out little shags that will be underneath; remove them with the beveling file, which gives a smoother edge than the metal instrument though it does not work as quickly.

Now for the hand washing. Use warm soap suds and a brush. Rinse and dry with a soft towel. Dip the orangewood stick in nail white, pass it under the eaves, forming a clear-cut white line So far, so good.

Touch each nail with cuticle cream or, if you prefer, you can use olive oil. Massage it into the surrounding flesh. Then, very gently, lift the flesh with the orangewood stick—don't force it back. If it proves stubborn move the stick in little circles. If you rout out any hangnails, snip them off with the scissors, pointing the sharp ends toward the nail base.

Another washing, another rinsing and drying. Then on with the coral veneer, which should be allowed to dry. Two light films hold on longer than one heavy coating.

There you are, fingers beautifully petaled.

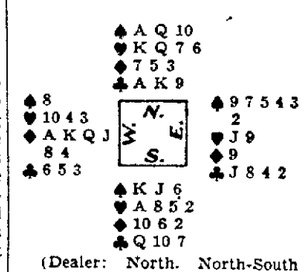
"The Authority on Authorities"

A GOOD THING OVERDONE

IN MAKING initial bids, some players are so deathly afraid of four-card major suits that they overdo what they call "the utility club." They open nearly a third of all hands with 1-Club, almost regardless of what suits they have. If they are going to have that habit, they would do well to have a corollary consisting of extreme liberality in showing four-card majors on later rounds. Otherwise they will find themselves in many bad spots when the bidding is over.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	East	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

What a juicy morsel for West, a player who had sense enough to use the power of the pass! No fool was he. You didn't catch him bidding his diamonds the first time around or doubling the second time, to warn his opponents of their peril. All that he did was wait for them and then run his six diamond tricks, setting the contract two.

If North saw fit to start with his "utility club," he should have bid his hearts the second time, after his partner's 1-No Trump. South could have bid hearts on either his first or second turns, but sadly neglected to. Had either mentioned the heart suit at any time, the partner would have raised and the side would have played the hand at 4-Hearts, which could not be beaten under any circumstances. Three diamonds would be lost, but the rest of the tricks were solid.

For tea this delightful snack will be enjoyed: Mix equal parts of butter and light brown sugar, add a little vanilla, almond extract and grated orange peel. Spread on hot toast—reheat until bubbly on top. Serve at once.

To add to the attractiveness of cooked or canned shrimps, remove with a sharp knife the little black vein that circles the outside.

Dull Meals Not Necessary During Lent

During Lent we learn that self-denial is good for the soul. We give up things that we like, and we give up meat. But we don't have to give in to pointless menus and dreary substitutes, and surrender the essentials of a flavorsome, balanced diet.

Serve plenty of oranges and grapefruits and lemons for proper vitamin C content. Mash sweet potatoes, pumpkin or yellow squash, using orange juice as the liquid for a new and nutritious flavor combination.

Old-fashioned macaroni and cheese is the sort of dish that is liked the year 'round. Make it with one and one-half cups uncooked macaroni, broken into one-inch pieces; one and one-half cups grated American cheese, two tablespoons melted butter, three tablespoons prepared mustard, three-fourths teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon black pepper, two and one-fourth cups milk, two-thirds cup buttered bread crumbs. Cook macaroni in large amount of boiling, salted water until tender. Drain. Place alternate layers of macaroni and cheese in buttered baking dish. Blend butter, mustard, salt and pepper. Add milk. Pour over macaroni mixture. Bake in 350° F. oven for one hour. Top with bread crumbs and bake 15 minutes longer or until crumbs are browned. Makes six to eight portions.

Salmon chowder pie is a Lenten treat. Make it with four tablespoons chopped onion, four tablespoons fat, four tablespoons flour, one cup water drained from cooked vegetables, two cups milk, teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one and one-half cups diced cooked potatoes, one cup cooked sliced carrots, one cup cooked peas, one pound cooked salmon and one recipe bran-biscuit. Simmer onion in fat until tender. Add flour; stir to smooth paste. Add liquid ingredients; cook until thickened. Add seasonings, vegetables and flaked, boned salmon. Pour into large greased baking dish, cover with bran-biscuit dough rolled to fit dish. Bake in 425° F. oven about 20 minutes or until biscuits are done. Makes 10 servings.

Bran-biscuit dough is made with one-half cup bran, three-fourths cup buttermilk, one and one-half cups flour, teaspoon baking powder, teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon soda and one-half cup shortening. Soak bran in buttermilk. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and soda together. Cut in shortening until mixture is like coarse cornmeal. Add soaked bran; stir till dough follows fork around bowl. Turn onto floured board, knead lightly a few seconds; roll or pat to one-eighth inch thickness.

16 SCIENTISTS
Reveal Great Discovery About
CONSTIPATION
Tests of World-Famous Hospital Show How To Help Nature Produce Her Own Gentle, Complete "Daily" Bowel Action!

NEW YORK: Constipation sufferers rejoice! For now violent cathartics and laxatives and harsh "roughage" products, many of which are habit forming and are often irritating to bowel lining—can be avoided.

You can now actually help Nature produce her own gentle, complete "daily" bowel movements—thanks to the patient study of 16 Scientists.

You see if waste matter in the colon isn't kept moist it becomes hard, dry, caked and results in constipation. These scientists discovered that a "little daily dose" of Kruschen actually keeps this waste matter moist, soft and easy to expel. Also acts as a mild antacid and kidney diuretic.

There is no nausea, no griping, no violence with Kruschen. Hospital tests report: "Kruschen can be taken for years without having to increase the dose." Inexpensive! Only a trifle for a jar that lasts weeks. Over 245,000,000 jars of Kruschen have been sold thruout the world. Kruschen must do the work!

CHAPTER XXIII

"It wasn't your fault," Star said stubbornly. "You couldn't have helped it."

"All the more reason that we should not see each other outside the office," Milton said miserably. "Oh, Star, you are too inexperienced to see the danger ahead. We wouldn't intend to do anything unfair or dishonorable but the more we were together the more justified we would feel. It wouldn't work, my dear! I'm sorry. I feel like a heel even saying this to you but we mustn't see each other any more."

She looked at him longlingly. If she could tell him what she knew about Jennifer would he feel any differently? Why must their innocent companionship cease while Jennifer did as she pleased? But the news of his wife's deception could never come from Star.

She faltered. "I understand. It's all right. Only please don't blame yourself," and stumbled from the boat blind with tears.

Star walked all the way to her boarding house, a distance of several miles. When she reached it she was exhausted but resignation had settled like dark waters above the tempest in her heart.

He did love her! How well she knew it! But Milton Wood was no weakling. He respected her too much to make love to her even if he had had no regard for his marriage to Jennifer.

What a situation! Typical, Star decided, of her entire life. Frustrated at every point where affection was concerned. Deprived of her father, neglected by her mother, unwanted as a daughter-in-law by Nina, and now renounced even as a companion by the only man in the world who mattered to her.

"Every time I find even a little happiness it is taken away from me," she thought desperately.

She had stopped for food but was unable to eat. She had no idea what hour it was when she reached her room but she tumbled into bed and did not rise until the following morning. By that time she decided upon a course of action. Milton had said he could not, would not see her outside the office. But she knew the torture it would be for them to work together.

So long as the magic words had not been spoken they might have pretended, but that was impossible now. He would be too tender-hearted to ask her to find another position. He couldn't very well discharge her just because she had fallen in love with him. No, that was her responsibility, Star thought drearily. The experience she had had working as his secretary would make it easier to find something else and no doubt he would give her excellent references.

He would do anything he could to help her, but no one could heal the wound in her heart. Useless now to tell herself she should not have been such a fool. She had loved him before she knew he had a wife. And the more she knew about that wife and her disloyalty the more Star pitied and loved him.

It was a vicious circle but it was not his fault. How dear and honorable he had been. So troubled to know that she shared his emotion, bewildered, blaming himself. . . .

Nine o'clock found her in his office, pale but fresh as the rosebud which graced his desk.

"I think I ought to tell you that I am going to look for another position," she said in a low voice.

"Must you?" he asked without conviction.

Her blue eyes, wistful and sad, met his.

"Yes. I hope you won't mind giving me a recommendation."

"I'll do that, of course, Star. Perhaps I may hear of some one who needs a secretary." He added anxiously, "You won't leave until you have found something else?"

"I can't. I have to support my mother, you know."

He took her hands in his and for a moment the world whirled dizzily, then he said, "You're right. I know you're right and I admire you for it. It's the only way. In the meantime you may be sure I'll do anything I possibly can for you."

"You don't need to try to make it up to me for what's happened!" she cried in a small fierce voice. "It's the most wonderful thing in the world!"

Milton sighed.

"I'm afraid you give me too much credit. I'm not at all like the ideal you've built up in your mind."

"You're the finest person I have ever known," she insisted. "But I know your faults, too. You are quick-tempered and irritable sometimes too when you're tired."

His eyebrows lifted whimsically.

"What? You admit it?"

"Of course! But that's only because you're so sensitive. And, after all, you don't demand any more than you are willing to give."

"You spoil me, Star. You build me up until I feel like a superman."

"Well, you are one," she said so seriously that he smiled.

"We'd better be getting to work," he suggested. "It happens to be Monday morning."

A few moments later she was taking a letter for him, but nothing was the same. Nothing would be the same again. When noon came Star hurried with her lunch then put in her application at an agency he recommended, saying, "We often get girls from there. It's the best in the city."

So that now every time the telephone rang she would be afraid they might have found something for her. Every day might be her last with him. Each time he said good night and departed for those engagements which filled his calendar might be the end. This knowledge she bore in her heart like a poisoned arrow. No wonder she lost weight. Her face became so thin that even Mamie noticed it.

"You look as if you hadn't eaten a square meal in weeks. What's the matter with you?" she demanded.

"Nothing. Here's your money, Mother."

"You aren't going to get sick, are you?" Mamie inquired anxiously. "That would be just my luck now that I'm dependent on you. And my own heart acting up until I think it will jump out of my body."

"You'd better see a doctor," Star suggested. "But I'm all right. You needn't worry about me."

"Mrs. Brady took me to hers," Mamie confessed. "He said I was overweight and anemic, and my nervous system is simply shot to pieces. I'm in no condition to work."

"I don't expect you to," Star assured her, adding, "You didn't tell him how much you've been drinking, I suppose?"

"There you go! Bawling me out! That's what I get when I need a little sympathy. You father was the same way. No one has ever understood me but Joe."

Weighs Measure to Have U. S. Pay Campaign Costs

HATCH SEEKS EXTENSION OF CLEAN-UP BILL

Financing of Candidacies by Government Sought After Victory in Senate.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Sen. Carl A Hatch, D., N. M., victorious over senate foes of his bill to extend the "clean politics" act to thousands of state employes, considered today legislation to finance major political campaigns out of Uncle Sam's pocketbook.

"I have long been speculating with the idea of providing the funds for major political campaigns through federal appropriations," Hatch said "I believe it would be cheaper and better in every way than the present system."

He advanced such a proposal as his bill to extend the prohibition of political activity on federal employes to state employes who are paid with federal funds was passed, 58 to 28, by the senate and sent to the house where Democratic leaders predicted it would have difficulty getting out of the judiciary committee. Speaker William B. Bankhead announced his opposition to it before the senate acted.

The original act won house approval, 241 to 134 The senate was not called upon for a record vote. Yesterday's senate action, which came after two weeks of debate, found a majority of Democrats and the entire Republican membership lined up with Hatch.

In discussing his proposal to have the government appropriate funds for major political campaigns, thus putting an end to often-criticized private contributions, Hatch recalled that Theodore Roosevelt once suggested a similar plan and that several states experimented with it.

"There would be many practical difficulties," he said, "but I hope that they could be overcome."

Hatch said it probably would be next session before he would have his plan ready for introduction.

The Senate approved several amendments to his bill extending the original Hatch act to States. The most important was to restrict to $5,000 the annual amount any individual may contribute to a political campaign.

Hatch Bill Would Curb 15,000 Ohio Employes

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The politically-active days of approximately 15,000 state employes in Ohio would be terminated if the senate-approved Hatch bill becomes law

The measure, now before the house, would place on state workers paid partially or in full from federal funds the same political restrictions now imposed on federal workers.

Such restrictions, reliable estimates showed today, would affect about 7,200 state highway department employes, 5,000 in the welfare department, 1,800 in the bureau of unemployment compensation, 400 in the agriculture department, 375 in the health department, and 100 in the education department.

With few exceptions, all would be forbidden to use their official influence to affect the outcome of an election, coerce subordinates politically or engage in political campaigns.

Exempted from the latter restriction would be Gov. John W. Bricker, elective officials, heads of state and local departments and policy-making officials appointed by the governor.

An amendment approved by the senate also would curb assessment of state employes for political contributions.

Something unique in birth announcements was received by friends of Mr. and Mrs. Harry DeVine, rear 310 Purdy street, following the arrival of Daughter Daphne, born last week. The cover of the card is a photo of the father seated on a table, wiping his brow. The table is littered with empty cigaret packs and a soup bowl piled high with half-smoked cigarets. The scene is supposed to represent a waiting room in a maternity hospital. The announcement appears inside.

Mansfield board of education members, accustomed to talking in terms of a million dollars, read with interest last night an entry in the board's journal in 1846 which said $20 had been allotted "for the repair of buildings and other expenditures" The book was loaned to the board by Miss Nettie Herring, 132 South Main street, who found it in some old papers at her home It covers the period from 1846 to 1851. An 1850 entry reported the hiring of George L. Mills as superintendent and teacher at $400 a year. A janitor was employed for $10 a month and an additional 33 and a third cents per cord for stove wood that he cut. Teachers were paid $14 a month.

John Vogt, advertising manager for Isaly's stores, is being accused of attempting to set a new style in men's hats that is crazier than usual, but there is a perfectly valid explanation behind Vogt's wearing two hats at the same time. Vogt was enjoying a game of pool after luncheon when someone gave him a hat which Ruhland Isaly had lost at a luncheon meeting last week Absorbed in the game Vogt put Isaly's hat on top of his own But he forgot that it was there when he went out onto the street, and he wore the two hats, one brown and one blue, through several stores and down Main street, and was becoming a little embarrassed at giggles and curious glances directed at him, until a friend asked him if he was launching a new style.

Township Trustees Begin Series of Sessions With Engineer.

Townships have been lenient so far in their requests for county aid in building and repairing their roads this year, County Engineer Howard C. Sword said today after conferring with trustees from four of the county's 18 townships.

Trustees from Plymouth, Cass and Mifflin townships were interviewed yesterday at the courthouse by county commissioners and the engineer. Bloominggrove township officials were questioned previously about their road plans.

Trustees from Franklin, Weller and Sandusky townships are scheduled to confer with county officials Wednesday morning and those from Springfield and Madison townships in the afternoon. Others have been invited to meet at the courthouse Thursday.

HIT PARTIES IN CEMETERY

Farmers Irked at Bonfires and Dancing in Texas Church Graveyard.

DALLAS, Texas —(AP)— Irate farmers today threatened vigilante action to halt wild parties in the Rogers community church and graveyard.

Fun loving youths of the Dallas high school set have wrecked the old church, lugged its pulpit into the yard and stacked the pews in a corner.

Flat tombstones in the adjoining 75-year-old graveyard have been ripped up and laid side by side for a dance floor.

Churchmen, headed by T. B. Crosby, threatened to load their shotguns with salt and lie in wait for the defiant youngsters.

"We'll organize a vigilante committee," said Crosby, a church trustee, before going to the grand jury with his complaint.

Behind him came E. M. Conoly who said the youngsters knocked over the gravestone, cursed and shouted and tore boards off the church to build bonfires.

"They dragged the big flat tombstones together and danced on them," Conoly said.

Services in the church had to be discontinued.

Churchmen recently captured 89 youngsters on the church property and held them until deputy sheriffs arrived. Officers took the youth's names but no charges were filed.

Parents were notified but still the youngsters come to make whoopee almost nightly, the farmers said.

Vigilantes, armed with shotguns loaded with salt, may greet the next funsters who come to the hill-top church.

BOARD EMPLOYS 11 TO WORK IN NEW SCHOOL CAFETERIAS

Completing the staffs at the two new junior high schools, the Mansfield board of education last night employed 11 cafeteria workers for the John Simpson and Johnny Appleseed buildings and approved three replacements for the Senior high school cafeteria.

In addition, Roy Haverfield was hired as an assistant janitor to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Elza Murray.

The board granted permission for the Children's Crusade For Children to set up coin receptacles in Mansfield schools to receive voluntary contributions from pupils for indigent children in foreign lands. Permission was granted on the basis that there will be no solicitation.

At the suggestion of Building Superintendent J. B. Moke, the board agreed to ask Althouse and Jones and Vernon Redding and Associates, architects for the two new junior high school buildings, to prepare sketches for landscaping around the new buildings.

A proposal of Lloyd L. Kochenderfer, city sidewalks superintendent, that the board finance the construction of new walks along two sides of the new John Simpson building was tabled. Cost of the walks was estimated at $945, or 14 cents per square foot.

The Roseland Grange was given a new lease on the former Roseland school as a meeting place at $12 per year.

TURNER POINTS TO SAVINGS IN OPERATING COST

Declares Installation of Engine Will Cut Power Costs 51 Per Cent.

Renewed request for installation of power equipment to utilize sewage gas produced at the municipal sewage treatment plant was laid before city council today by James R. Turner, plant superintendent.

The proposal calls for the installation of a gas-engine blower that would increase by 50 per cent the air output of the present compressing equipment.

Complete data on the plan was contained in a three-page report submitted to Mayor William J. Locke, who turned the recommendation over to council.

Turner suggested that council appoint a committee to study the proposal with him

The report pointed out that gas production at the plant during the past year has averaged approximately 53,000 cubic feet per day. bout 13,000 cubic feet is used for heat while the other 40,000 cubic feet is wasted, Turner explained

Cuts Power Cost.

He said the installation of a blower would allow for the discontinuance of the present motor driven equipment and reduce the electric costs 51 per cent

This savings, which he said would amount to $4 775 annually would allow for payment of the proposed equipment in 45 months.

Two plans of installation were submitted in the report One calling for the installation of an engine driven blower in the present blower room at the plant at a cost of $18,000, and the future installation of a gas driven generator at the cost of $13,000

The other plan calls for the immediate installation of a gas driven generator for converting the sewage gas into electric power at the costs of $20,000 and the future installation of a second engine at the additional cost of $15,000.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Excerpts From Miss Midnight's Diary.

This week on Broadway was enlivened by Walter Houston's return to the stage as a dyed-in-the-greasepaint villain, the sight of pretty girls riding hobby horses in the gilded kindergarten of El Morocco, and the selection of a sort of subway Brenda Frazier as "Miss Cafeteria Society 1940."

I will not attempt to explain why the girls were riding horses in El Morocco, because when I came in things were at such a pitch you couldn't tell whether it was being done for $100 bills, the Finnish Relief, or just the heck of it—but there they were, at midnight Sunday night, and from what I gather they will be doing it again this coming Sabbath. I did observe that some of the girls were very shy about riding the horses western style in very short or very skimpy skirts, excepting Patricia "Honeychile" Wilder, who got no complaints from the gallery when she revealed her knees. The other lasses all took their horses and their blushes into the back room and rocked away, having a wonderful time, while the grown-ups rhumba'd.

John Garfield, who once called Bill's Gay Nineties "a shrine to the theater," dropped back again Monday night, to the temporary delight of his feminine admirers, who all sent over post cards and menus to be autographed. But apparently John thinks a shrine is no place for an autograph hound, for he returned all the post-cards without his signature.

Tuesday evening seemed to be Food night, with all the celebs storing away steaks, chops, and truffles. Crosby Gaige, the epicure, was storing it away in Colbert's, the Jimmy Walkers were busy with the knife and fork a few tables away, and three glamor girls famous for their figures—Margot Graham, Lily Pons, and Sylvia Sidney—were all behaving as if they had never heard of a calorie

The Tavern, on the same evening, looked like Honeymoon Island, what with the Ernest Westmores (Peggy Kent) at one table, eating off each other's plates, and Oscar Levant and June Gale at another The Levants were chaperoned by young Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who appeared to be doing most of the quipping, and, unless it is treason to say so, getting most of the laughs But Oscar came through in the end; when things began looking a little dull, he gave himself a hot foot.

La Conga really bulged Wednesday night when the merrymakers celebrated the return of Desi Arnaz to the floor show. Willie Moore, the restaurant fellow, made matters more crowded by bringing in a crowd of 30, including Ann Graham, Geraldine Spreckles, Betty Allen, Benny Baker and Lois Andrews

Over at the Algonquin Supper club Prince and Princess Alexander Hohenlohe rubbed titled elbows with Diana Blythe, Bramwell Fletcher, Brenda Forbes, Richard (Mr. Carp) Haydn, Ann Francine, and Mrs. Sidney Howard. Eddy Duchin, who is going around incognito (about as incognito as Archduke Otto, whom I keep bumping into everywhere except the Madison avenue bus) looked a little glum, and Ethel Merman asked him why

"I just made out my income tax report," Eddy replied gloomily, "and I didn't realize I did so well last year!"

Walter Huston's audience for the premiere of "A Passenger to Bali" was, I am unhappy to report, more enthusiastic than chic, or even famous. A few items saved the evening, from the purely rubberneck standpoint. They were: (a) George Jessel's arrival with Elinor Troy, who wore six feet of white fox, from chin to toes, a pink lace dress, and a black bow. The white fox coat, which has been seen by some of us before, was a complete surprise to Auriol Lee, the English director, who remarked to Alfred DeLiagre: "George could toss that on the floor and play Elinor Glyn's "Three Weeks" on it; (b) Tommy Manville's appearance without Elinor Troy. (He was with, of all things, a man); (c) Valentina's appearance in a black lace helmet which revealed only a small portion of her nose, mouth and eyes.

What happened after the theater in the more signee bistros I cannot attest to, for I was not there. I was over in Times Square at the Fiesta Danceteria helping choose "Miss Cafeteria-Society" while several hundred customers craned necks, whistled, stood on chairs to see and applauded the prettiest.

The prize—$100—went to Miss Muriel Klushin, an 18-year-old stenographer who is prettier and better-mannered than most debutantes and certainly walks better than any I see around the Stork club. She was, I think it is not tattling to tell, the judges' unanimous choice. . . . The contest was conducted on a strictly non-professional, proletarian standpoint. The only note which struck me as capitalistic was the beverage served: champagne. Is that what the masses are drinking now?

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Eddy-mania sweeps the country.

I know. Not long ago I wrote a piece comparing Allan Jones and Nelson, to the latter's slight disparagement. I know about Eddy-mania because I have heard the voice of the fans.

From their letters my hitherto blind eyes and ears have been opened to the most amazing catalogue of charms and powers innate in the person of Eddy, Allan Jones? How did I dare to write of him in the same paragraph with the divine Eddy?

Let me quote a typical Eddy-fication, from "Rea" down in Daytona Beach, Fla.:

"He (Jones) may have a dulcet voice but it never broke a heart. Nelson does not have to act! He is what he is, and his soul comes out to us because he is sincere. We love him, and long may he reign!"

All right, lady, all right! I'm in full retreat. Any guy who can bring forth such an ecstatic tribute must have something these poor eyes have missed. But grant me just this—that the man can't act—and I'll sign a truce.

Personally, I wish the fans would get that excited about Greer Garson, who can act. Greer is a fascinating person You leave her with the thought that you've just talked to a great beauty and that is true. Also true is the fact that she is not, by ordinary standards, even pretty.

Greer is starring in "Pride and Prejudice" at present. She was to have done "Susan and God" but presumably her miscasting in "Remember?" quashed it. Joan Crawford got that brittle modern role and Greer Garson is back in the long skirts—and six petticoats—of a romantic English era. Right now she's as far from the prospect of exhibiting her legs as Bette Davis

This is all right with me, too Maybe she does belong in heavily-costumed assignments like her Mrs. Chips which brought her movie notice. (I talk like a producer. I can't see her leaving her type because I haven't seen her leaving her type.) But I wish, just once, they'd put her in a color picture. You'd understand, then, what I mean when I say she's not pretty and she's a great beauty.

Sights-to-wait-for: Vivien Leigh in a rubberneck bus, "doing" Hollywood for a week after she finishes "Waterloo Bridge" (That's what she says she'll do—hasn't had time to see the town before.)

Quote, from Florence "Granny" Roberts of the Jones Family: "I'm eager to look at footlights again. There are a lot of fine stage plays for an actress who looks as old and feels as young as I do."

For a real quandary, consider Basil Rathbone's. Basil is on the prowl for a Scottish terrier with a deep, bass voice.

He was telling his "Destiny" comrades about it. Basil likes Scotties, but he also likes harmony. He already has five Scotties, three of them with good natural tenor voices, one with a baritone, one undeniably (I quote Basil) a soprano. Too, too many tenors—the chorus is too shrill. One booming bass would make all the difference.

"I have done considerable research in the matter," Basil avers, "armed with a pitch-pipe, a parcel of soup bones and other devices for plumbing the personalities of dogs. I still have hopes."

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(U P)—The league of women baseball sufferers, composed of wives of major league players, has come up with one of the most promising rookies in years in the person of Dorothy DiMaggio, bride of the Yankee slugger center fielder.

Although making her first trip to a spring training camp, Mrs. DiMaggio has shown enough talent as a sufferer when the Yankees are playing to earn her high praise from such veteran sqa'rmers, nail chewers, and permanent wave disarrangers as Vi Dickey, Izzy Rolfe, June Gomez and Pauline Ruffing.

Mrs. DiMaggio was put to her first real test at the all-star tilt between the American and National leagues here last Sunday and her behavior when her husband was at bat or chasing a fly, and the American league was behind, stamped her as ready to step into the big league of sufferers in her first year up. This correspondent saw Mrs. DiMaggio before she went to the all-star game and after she had returned. On her departure for the park her make-up and coiffure were impeccable.

When I saw her again, after she had been through the torment of seeing husband Joe fail to get a hit, and the Nationals lick the Americans, she could have used the complete $5 treatment in a beauty parlor. And this, mind you, despite the fact that naturally she is just about the prettiest wife in baseball.

She didn't deny that her experience had been harrowing, either.

"It's terrible," she said wearily, "that sitting there and watching your man at the plate. You hope and pray he'll get a hit. You find yourself hating the umpire when he calls a strike, and the pitcher for throwing it. I don't think I could stand it if Joe weren't a good hitter and I didn't have the comfort of knowing he usually gets his share of hits and runs."

Mrs. DiMaggio's ability to suffer so intently probably lies in the fact that she was once a baseball player herself, and thus knows the problems and hardships of hitting high fast ones, curves that break like a pane of glass, and tantalizing changes of pace and the such. Yes, Mrs DiMaggio was a better than fair first baseman in her day.

"It's terrible suffering," she said, "but it's fun. And, too, I've got to get in training for my first world series this fall That will make me worry and fret."

This remark made it obvious that Mrs. DiMaggio hasn't seen the Yanks in a world series. They don't give their backers much to worry about. Just four straight and in a hurry.

* * *

For the life of us we can't feel sorry for Mrs. DiMag and her suffering. If she is tortured when Joe comes to bat, just think of what the wives of those .230 hitters go through

Heffner Unleashes Vicious Attack to Win Over Carone

UNLEASHING a vicious attack that would have put even the Hun or the Masked Marvel to rout, Jimmie Heffner, the Sherman, Tex., light-heavy, crushed the latest addition to Mansfield's wrestling fraternity last night in the final feature of Tim Nolan's double wind-up show in the Armory.

Fred Carone, 200-pound Chicago Italian, was Heffner's victim. It took Jimmie 18 minutes to wear Carone down for the first fall, winning it with his deadly Indian choker hold.

Carone attempted to win the second setto by fair means or foul, mostly foul, but in less than two minutes Heffner again had the Italian clamped in the choker grip and the match was over.

After battling Old Man "Flu" all last week, Bull Marino left his sick bed to tangle with the Masked Marvel in the other feature match of last night's show. And he came out second best, but it was only Referee Clarence Miller's decision that the Masked Marvel won.

Grappling for over 30 minutes in the first heat, it was apparent Marino was not himself as he failed to maul the Marvel about as he did in their previous meeting. Bull, in a last desperate attempt to halt the Marvel, finally grabbed the Masked One by the heels and turned him about in the airplane spin to smother him for the first fall

After wearing Marino down to submission in 18 minutes the Marvel turned Marino into the crab hold and took the second fall.

The few remaining minutes of the alloted hour were soon over and the Marvel was given the nod by Referee Miller.

* * *

Bob Steele, Mansfield's own contribution to the break-it-off society defeated Ralph Akers of Michigan in the opening bout of evening. It took Steele better than 15 minutes to down Akers which he finally accomplished by bouncing him off the ropes and covering him with a body smother

Chiefs Get Down to Business

With the opening of the spring training season only a few weeks in the distance, Mansfield Braves' officials are busy getting things in shipshape for the Ohio State league campaign, which will be launched May 1. The photo above shows William R. Neale, of Toledo, who was appointed business manager yesterday; President Joe C. Hartline (seated) and Treasurer William Purcell, checking a contract received from one of the Braves.

Brother of 'Greasy' Neale Named Business Manager of Braves.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

WILLIAM R. NEALE of Toledo, a former professional baseball player and college football coach, was named business manager of the Mansfield Braves yesterday.

Neale, a brother of "Greasy" Neale, Yale football coach and former outfielder of the Cincinnati Reds, will take over his new duties April 1, Joe C. Hartline, president of the Braves, announced.

The new business manager made his first trip to the city in his new capacity yesterday, visited the Fairground and looked over several sites for a business office.

Neale is well qualified for the position as he served in a similar capacity with the Toledo Mud Hens during the managerial regime of Casey Stengel, now with the Boston Bees.

He held a government position in Toledo until he resigned late last week to take over the Mansfield job.

A shortstop during his playing days, Neale was a member of the New Bedford club of the old New England league for three years.

Neale served as head football coach at St. John's college of Toledo, now known as De Sales, for several years, and later was appointed physical education director of the Toledo Newsboys association, a position he held for 15 years.

Dewey Stover, who has been retained as field manager, will join Neale early in April. The Braves' pitchers and catchers will not report for spring training until April 10, but Stover will conduct a rookie school, which will open April 3.

* * *

Announcement was also made yesterday by Hartline that the majority of the holdovers have returned their contracts signed.

Rookie's Batting Weakness Is Worrying Reds' Manager

TAMPA, Fla.—(U P)—A batting weakness by Mike McCormick, star rookie outfielder, against curve and low ball pitches worried Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds today.

Mike started the grapefruit league season a-blazing at the plate against fast ball serves but in the last two Redleg games he has looked bad when the rival tossers began to mix 'em up with a change of pace and curves.

McKechnie is spending much time with the Indianapolis product in an effort to correct the hitting weakness. The deacon knows assurance of another outfielder who can hit .290 or .300 will strengthen the Reds immeasurably for defense of their National League pennant in the coming season.

The low pitches seem to bother McCormick most of all and the National League hurlers specialize in that brand of tosses. If McKechnie can correct this weakness in the next three weeks, there will be two McCormicks in the Cincinnati lineup come four weeks from today and the opening game against the Cubs. There is no question about Mike's fielding.

McCormick will get a thorough testing today when he has to bat against Tommy Bridges and other veteran Detroit pitchers whom the Reds face in an exhibition tilt at Lakeland.

* * *

Lonnie Frey and Ival Goodman will be left behind tomorrow when the champions take off for Havana to play several Cuban All-Star clubs. McKechnie wants Frey to conserve his strength. He weighs only 160 pounds. Goodman is suffering a lame shoulder.

OHIO LINKSMEN WIN, BUT BASEBALLERS LOSE

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Ohio State's university's touring baseball and golf teams today marked up a victory and a loss. The linksmen defeated Washington and Lee, 5 to 4, at Lexington, Va., while the Buck nine lost to Randolph Macon, 5 to 4, at Ashland, Va.

Soph Star Hurt Rounding Third

Young Shortstop Replaced By Russ Peters; Indians Trim Phillies, 11 to 4.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—(U P)—You could slice the gloom around the Cleveland Indian tepee with a 50-ounce bat today after Lou Boudreau, star young shortstop, chipped a bone in his left ankle.

The brilliant major league sophomore will be lost for at least a month, according to doctors who X-rayed the injury suffered while Boudreau was running bases. Boudreau must hobble along on crutches for two weeks and then will require another two weeks before he can give the ankle any stiff exercise.

With the Indians' opening American league game only four weeks away it seemed doubtful if he would be in the initial lineup and he may not break in until May 1.

All of this is a serious blow to Indian hopes for a fast start in the 1940 race.

The mishap occurred while Lou was rounding third base in an exhibition tilt against the Philadelphia Nationals won by the Indians, 11 to 4.

Rookie Russ Peters from Atlanta gets the shortstop job in Boudreau's absence. He filled in acceptably yesterday after Lou went out in the second inning. Russ got one hit, was robbed of another by smart Phillie fielding and accepted six chances without an error in the field.

Beau Bell, filling in for Hal Trosky at first base, led the Cleveland attack yesterday with a double and a single in three times at bat and drove in three runs.

The only Tribesman outside of the pitchers who failed to hit safely in the 13-blow barrage was Ray Mack, Boudreau's sophomore partner at second base, whose failure to connect consistently is a real worry for Manager Oscar Vitt.

The Indians meet the New York Giants at Winter Haven today in the first game of their annual spring series.

Packard, of all manufacturers, has the fastest-growing family of owners in America.

And the big reason is—greater owner satisfaction . . . in value, performance and all-around economy. Packard urges you to compare . . . check . . . demonstrate it against other cars.

You'll find it's 1940's stand-out—a big car that costs little to run. For proof, study the comparative service costs at the right—then see your nearest Packard dealer now.

Now, more than ever—

DUQUESNE CAGERS HOPE TO GET CRACK AT RIVALS

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—The Duquesne basketeers, who start practice tomorrow for the National Collegiate A. A. tournament opening Friday night at Indianapolis, hope the tourney will give them another crack at the only two teams to beat them this year.

If the elimination so decrees, they would meet Indiana, who downed the Dukes 51-48 in the regular season, and Colorado, who defeated them 51-40 in the final of the New York invitation tournament last Friday night.

STEEL, AVIATION SHARES STRONG IN QUIET MART

Traders Cheered by Signs Indicating Change in Industrial Picture.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Selective rallying tendencies came into the stock market today after an irregular start.

Steels, aviations and mail orders posted gains of fractions to more than a point. Dealings were relatively quiet, however, and rails, motors, rubbers and coppers held to a narrow range.

Varying opinions in Wall Street over prospects of peace or intensified war remained as the principal speculative restraint, brokers said.

Bonds, commodities and foreign securities markets were uneven.

A hopetul market note was sounded by the federal reserve board which indicated evidence was at hand showing a flattening out of the recent downward industrial curve.

The board's seasonally adjusted index of industrial production, it was disclosed, fell from 119 per cent of the 1924-25 average in January to 109 in February. A further drop in March was looked for, but at a slower rate.

nation and consideration of the peace terms only confirm us in the view that they were in fact such as only could have been accepted by a proud people like the Finns under dire compulsion."

Chamberlain declared that "in spite of all we did we were unable to save Finland from her fate, but perhaps our power to help Finland is not yet at an end."

This brought loud cheers.

"Finland would never have been invaded if it had not been for the pacts between the Soviet and Germany. It was only German threats which terrified the Scandinavian countries into withholding help which might perhaps have saved her.

"No one can suggest that this country and France had failed in their obligations to do their utmost to assist Finland. Least of all should such suggestions come from individuals in countries far away from the seat of the war."

Prolonged cheers interrupted the prime minister here.

Reminding critics that Britain herself is at war, Chamberlain said "we are facing an unscrupulous and very powerful foe."

"For many weeks," he continued, "his forces have been mounted ready for an attack which could be delivered in a few hours.

"On our side, we have been straining every nerve to build up our own forces of defense and attack, so necessarily all our strategy has been directed towards the main objective.

"All requests received from neutrals must be continually weighed against our own needs. That applies to Finland."

R. H. Cross, minister of economic warfare, told the House of Commons earlier in reply to a question that under the Montreux convention belligerent warships are unable to pass through the Straits of Bosporus to the Black sea to establish contraband control.

Laborite Geoffrey Mander, asserting that it was intolerable to permit this oil traffic, said he had put forth suggestions on how to stop it under international law. Cross had asked whether he was suggesting flouting the Montreux convention.

French Deputies Debate War Conduct.

PARIS—(AP)—The chamber of deputies today voted an immediate secret session to discuss the government's general conduct of the European war and the reprecussions of the Finnish peace.

The motion, put by Edouard Herriot, president of the chamber, was passed without a record vote shortly after the deputies had convened to question Premier Daladier on conduct of the war.

The chamber had its last secret session in February and the senate ended such a session last Friday with a unanimous vote of confidence in Daladier.

All except deputies immediately were cleared from the chamber and guards stationed at the doors.

Mowers was arrested early last evening at the intersection of Routes 30 and 39 in East Mansfield by state highway patrol officers.

Friends Now, They May Be Political Foes in November

Two men who may oppose each other at the county election in November were working in the same office at the courthouse today and one was hired by the other.

Randall Barrett, deputy county engineer, who resigned about a month ago when he announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for engineer, was back on the job today.

Barrett said he had been asked to return to work by County Engineer Howard Sword who is seeking re-election on the Democratic ticket. Barrett has been a deputy in the office for 20 years.

Barrett and Sword will be opposing candidates for the engineer's post in the November election if Barrett wins the Republican nomination in May. Kenneth E. Shafter, Mansfield engineer, is running against him on the G.O.P. ticket. Sword has no opposition for the nomination at the primary.

DUCE AVERTS OFFENSIVE ON WESTERN FRONT

Press Declares Dictator Won't Be Permanent Peace Emissary.

Moscow would mark a rapprochement between Italy and Soviet Russia, well-informed circles saw the possibility of closer relations between France and Italy.

They predicted that former Premier Pierre Laval would enter a reorganized French cabinet and shortly afterward visit Rome for a conference of prime importance.

Italy's controlled press continued to insist that the Brenner pass meeting was a routine affair, unconnected with an intercontinental mission or peace plan framed or backed either by Italy or the Vatican.

The influential Rome Telegrafo said that Italy has no desire or intention to alter her present attitude. The conference resulted mainly from Hitler's desire to examine the whole general situation with his axis partner, Telegrafo said.

Meanwhile, high Italian officials and the Vatican categorically and vigorously denied reports that the Holy See had passed along an 11-point peace plan under which Hitler allegedly would agree to call off hostilities.

The reported plan, prominently displayed by the London press, was dismissed in some quarters as pure fiction and in others as "utter stupidity."

Vatican officials declared they had received no such proposal and were totally ignorant of its existence, the inevitable conclusion being that it simply does not exist.

Italian newspapers, commenting on the Hitler-Mussolini meeting at Brenner Pass, twitted the western democracies for their "nervousness" and contrasted this with Italy's "calm." But the newspapers scrupulously avoided any mention either of possible peace or a military offensive.

Another spike was driven into the peace plan story by a high official of the American embassy, who said he was "absolutely certain" that American Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles did not carry a peace plan from one nation to another.

Mussolini returned to Rome from Brenner Pass last night, but whether he would confer with Welles today, prior to the latter's departure for the United States, remained in doubt.

Welles was scheduled to receive correspondents at a press conference late this afternoon and to leave for Genoa, whence he will sail to America, at 11 p. m.

than 40 per cent over 1938, the total amounting to about $118,000 as compared with $82,500 in the preceding year," Sours said.

Asserting that marked savings were effected last year in the Ashland division, Sours pointed out that nine per cent more roads were serviced at about 19 per cent savings in costs. The savings in gasoline costs alone totaled $18,000, a 23 per cent reduction from the 1938 figure, he said.

Murray D. Shaffer, Mansfield, Ashland division engineer, presided during a part of the meeting which was held in the Ashland Armory.

Other speakers were: A. J. Darnall, chief statistician of the Ohio State Planning survey; Harry E. Neal, chief engineer of the state highway bureau of traffic and safety, and Dallas D. Dupre, jr., chief of the state highway landscape department.

LOSES PAROLE

Girl Who Abandoned Baby Here Sent Back to Delaware.

Beatrice Pinner, 17, Mansfield colored girl who abandoned her two-year-old baby in the Mansfield relief office last Wednesday, was returned to the Girls' Industrial school at Delaware today. She was on parole from the school.

Held in the county jail since her arrest last week on a charge of abandoning her child, the young mother was ordered back to the Delaware institution by Judge C. J. Anderson in juvenile court. Miss Esther Barnett, county juvenile officer, took her to Delaware.

The Better Way to Correct Constipation

One way to treat constipation is to endure it first and "cure" it afterward. The other way is to avoid having it by getting at its cause. So why not save yourself those dull headachy days, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can do it by a simple common-sense "ounce of prevention"?

If your trouble, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, "the better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it regularly—and drink plenty of water—you can not only get regular but keep regular, day after day and month after month! All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Approves Proposal to Increase NLRB Membership to 5

COMMITTEE FAVORS MOVE IN 14-3 VOTE

Attempt to Abolish Present Board Narrowly Beaten in Closed Session.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The house labor committee today overwhelmingly approved an amendment to the Wagner act to increase the membership of the national labor relations board from three to five.

At the same time the committee by a close vote turned down an amendment to abolish the present board altogether.

The vote to add two new presidential appointees to the board was 14 to 3.

The action came in a closed session after which Chairman Mary Norton (D) of New Jersey declared the committee was moving full speed ahead to complete consideration of all proposed amendments.

In addition to defeating the proposal for an entirely new board the committee by a voice vote turned down another amendment proposed by the Smith NLRB investigating committee to change the declaration of policy in the Wagner act.

Chairman Howard W. Smith of the investigating committee had asked that the term "failure of the employer to bargain collectively" be eliminated from the declared causes of strife and industrial unrest.

ELECT KING

Elks Lodge Holds Election; Class of 34 Initiated.

Jerome J. King was elected exalted ruler of the Mansfield lodge of Elks as the fraternal group held its annual election of officers last night. He succeeds Jack R. Berger.

Other officers elected are Harry A. Wineland, leading knight; Robert H. Small, royal night; W. Frederick Fisher, jr., lecturing knight; B. B. Kuhn, secretary; Don G. Ogden, treasurer; W. A. Kagey, tyler, and William A. Springer, trustee for three years. Berger was elected alternate to the grand lodge meeting to be held at Houston, Texas in July.

During the meeting a class of 34 candidates was taken into the lodge, with the officers in charge of the initiation. Lunch was served following the meeting. Visitors from the Willard and Elyria lodges attended. New officers will be installed in April.

TRUCKERS FINED

Drivers Accused of Violating State Licensing Laws.

Two Mansfield small truckers were haled into municipal court this morning for violating state utilities commission regulations which provide that trucksters without state licenses may not operate outside the city limits.

The affidavits were filed by T. E. Grimm, special investigator for the commission, against Marion Sackman, 18 St. Clair street, and Frank McGinty, 298 West Sixth street. Sackman was charged with transporting household furniture from Lima to Mansfield on March 13, while McGinty was charged with going out into the country about five miles from Mansfield with furniture in his truck.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch imposed fines of $200 and costs in each case, suspending $175 of each fine. McGinty paid his immediately after his case was heard, but Sackman, who told the court that he made only $13 a week and had a wife and child to support, arranged to pay his at a dollar a week.

SON OF NOTED TAILOR DEAD

CINCINNATI —(AP)— William Albert Nash, 49, son of the late Arthur "Golden Rule" Nash, pioneer tailer, died today, several hours after his wife found him unconscious, a bullet through his head.

Mrs. Nash told police Sergt. Charles Swillinger that her husband telephoned her from his office last night and that, sensing he was ill, she left to investigate. Swillinger said Nash left a note requesting that his body be turned over to a Covington, Ky., funeral home and that his wife be notified.

The elder Nash was known widely in the clothing industry for his inauguration of a wage policy.

SCHOOL POWER COSTS REDUCED

20 Per Cent Decrease Ordered By O. P. S. for New Buildings, and Senior High.

Electric power and light rate reductions for Mansfield junior and senior high school buildings which will save the board of education about 20 per cent were submitted to the board last night by the Ohio Public Service company.

The new rates, applicable only to the three high school buildings, are four and three-fourths cents per kilowatt hour for the first 500 kilowatt hours, three cents per kilowatt hour for the next 2,500 kilowatt hours, and two cents for each kilowatt hour beyond that.

The minimum charge per month per meter was cut from 75 cents to $1, effecting a savings during the summer months when the schools are not in use.

F. A. Chamberlain, division manager for the Ohio Public Service company, said the new rates were set up voluntarily by the power company to comply with the increased power usage following the opening of the new John Simpson and Johnny Appleseed buildings.

Recommendations of the Mansfield Underwriters committee for an increase of $759,000 in the insurance coverage on the city's school properties to include the two new junior high schools were taken under advisement by the board.

The new policies, which would be divided among 31 Mansfield agencies, would boost total coverage on the school properties to $2,196,000.

The board passed a blanket resolution authorizing John H. Eisaman, clerk, to request advances against the county tax collections any time school funds are needed.

With school funds running low, Eiseman said he would seek an advance immediately. The schools have already drawn $20,000 from the first half tax collection of the year.

than at first supposed, he added.

Meanwhile, the more than 100 miners who escaped with their lives were recovering from the effects of the dreaded "black damp," the lethal gas that follows a mine explosion.

Officials of the Hanna Coal company, operators of the workings, said that 20-car mine trains were torn apart like so much paper.

Quarters were set up to provide food, clothing and medical attention for the waiting families of the victims. Half of the entire Ohio highway patrol was on duty at the tipple to handle the thousands of spectators.

The state industrial commission set up temporary quarters to care for the death and injury claims arising out of the explosion. Acting on orders from Governor Bricker, Commission Chairman Will T. Blake announced that the claims would be given priority and adjudicated as promptly as possible. He estimated that the claims would total nearly a half million dollars.

Officials said today that the fluctuation "didn't mean anything" so far as production was concerned, but was a matter of deliveries on merchandise. The bonus is based on sales deliveries.

Supt. John H. Reynard telephoned to Elyria, the county seat six miles north, for assistance.

Five deputies and four policemen sped to the prison farm and broke up the demonstration. They handcuffed the more active agitators. They took 43 of them to the Elyria jail.

Guard Guy W. Carpenter said the principal complaint was a demand to be allowed to go to dormitory quarters before the regulation hour of 9 p. m. The men also complained of too many meat balls and beans.

The uproar started shortly after breakfast at 8 a. m. Carpenter reported that about eight agitators stirred up a crowd. He said 54 men out of the total enrollment of 147 prisoners took part. Police were called at 9:40 and the handcuffed men taken to jail at 10:45 a. m.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, MARCH 19, 1940.

It was easier in the old days to "make ends meet"—they weren't so far apart.

When you meet the smiling stranger who cordially extends his hand—that would be a candidate who recognizes that you are a voter.

Louisiana politicians are bitterly opposing the federal clean-up in that state—being defenders of state's wrongs as well as state's rights.

Essay Writers Gained Much

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS in Mansfield, Richland county, and elsewhere over the state, who participated in the American Legion's essay contest, have had a fine opportunity to learn more about the fundamentals of Americanism than might have otherwise been made available to them.

Those who won honors as a result of the excellence of their essays merit congratulations but others who studied the material and wrote an essay on the subject, "The Bill of Rights, My Protection," need feel no regret over the time and effort devoted to the task, as their increased knowledge of the privileges and responsibilities of American citizenship will have a lifelong value for each of them.

Ignorance and faulty thinking have been responsible, in large degree, for such success as alien propagandists have had in spreading un-American doctrines in this country, and there is no better safeguard for the future of America than sound education of today's young people, who are entitled to the heritage of freedom that has been passed to successive generations through a century and a half of progress.

For the forty-three men and women of Mansfield and Richland county who were awarded their citizenship papers, with fitting ceremonies at the American Legion home last night, acceptance into American citizenship represents an achievement of which they may well be proud. It means that they have been deemed worthy of an honor that can be accorded only a comparatively few persons who were born in some other country. It means, also, that they have been required to study the principles of American government and acquaint themselves with requirements of law-abiding citizenship.

Those who are so fortunate as to have been born in the United States are sometimes inclined to neglect study of the early history of their country and the principles upon which it was founded. Such information as must be gathered in advance of writing an essay on Americanism might well be made a part of the education of every adult and child in the United States.

Effect of Russian Rule

WHAT does it mean to come under Russian Communist rule? The Finns of the area that had to be surrendered to the Reds are finding out. William F. McDermott, an American journalist familiar with Russia, gives this picture:

"The Finns who remain will not only have lost what property they had. They will see the coming of a new way of life.

"For a clean Finnish home they will exchange a bed in a room with several other inmates. For the rich and numerous Finnish meals they will exchange an opportunity to wait in line for the first necessities of life.'

"For a free vote as to who shall rule them, they will have the privilege of approving rulers who have been chosen for them. For personal freedom they will do what they are told, work where they are told, and enjoy the pleasure of saying yes to whatever indignity is officially proffered them.

"If history is consistent, some of them will be shot down and others will wish they had been."

This is what happened in eastern Poland. It will happen in other countries if free nations cannot stem the tide of Bolshevism leagued with Nazism.

Purpose of Easter Seals

FUNDS raised by the sale of Easter Seals are used principally to aid crippled children. Most of the money stays in the community in which it is contributed. The rest goes to the National Society for Crippled Children.

The money may be used locally in any way that meets some particular need. One city, for example, plans to use its Easter Seal receipts for a summer camp for physically handicapped youngsters and to support an employment service for disabled adults.

The courage and self-reliance of the crippled, most of whom are eager to be self-supporting and willing to do any kind of work of which they are capable, deserve such special help. In a time when it is often hard for the able-bodied and trained man or woman to get jobs, it is harder still for the crippled.

The Easter Seals are examples of big things being accomplished by little effort. When a great many people buy and use a dozen or more of the seals, they share in a great work.

Speed Limits Ignored

DESPITE occasional arrests for speeding on Mansfield streets, there is obvious inclination among many motorists to disregard the 35- and 25-miles per hour speed limits prescribed for residence streets, as well as the 20-mile limit in what is designated as the "business district."

It is not unlikely, in fact, that a number of motorists do not know anything about the 25-mile limit fixed for all residence streets that are not parts of state or federal highways, as the speed maintained on West Third street, for instance, is seldom within the 25-mile limit.

Failure to observe stop signs has also developed into common practice, also driving out of alleys without stopping, and heading in the wrong direction in one-way alleys in the downtown section.

Until some evidence is seen of a more consistent policy of traffic law enforcement there is little chance of any considerable improvement in local traffic conditions.

Unintended Cruelty

EVEN more vigorously than heretofore, the American Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is asking that live chicks, ducklings and bunnies not be given to children at Eastertime.

Storekeepers and prospective purchasers are reminded by the society that these tiny creatures should not be made to serve as toys and that most of them quickly die of mistreatment.

Might it be that Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia gave Hitler and Stalin ideas?

Constant vigilance is also the price of traffic safety.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — For a guy who has a burning thirst for size and who thinks of living space in terms of warehouses and regimental armories, Billy Rose has shown considerable restraint in choosing a home for his bride. It is a modest 14-room chateau built entirely of imported Dutch brick, and is located at No. 33 Beekman place over on the East river.

The little Midas picked it for a mere $140,000 cash, and while it isn't what he originally had in mind, it is, as he says, at least a roof over their heads.

For a while he thought of taking a 40-room "lodge" he found on a mountain top near Tarrytown, N. Y., but decided against it when someone pointed out how far Tarrytown was from Lindy's.

"We shouldn"t go running off to the country anyway," the master says philosophically. "It would get so lonesome out there Eleanor and I might throw each other off a cliff."

THIS new house, from the Rose point of view, has only one defect. When he strolls to the broad bay windows and throws aside the curtains he finds that Billy Leed's yacht, which ties up there ruins his view of the lovely muddy waters of the river.

But for those who can discipline themselves away from river-vistas, there are compensating distractions. Rose has turned No. 33 Beekman Place into a sort of personal museum of art masterpieces, and for a man who makes his money out of tigers and elephants the taste is exemplary.

He has a fine 18th Century canvas by Sir Joshua Reynolds, and at least four excellent studies by the old Flemish masters, one of which is a knight by Van Dyke. There are also paintings by Derain, the modern French painter, and one by Puga, a pupil of the Spaniard Valesquez. There is, finally, a portraiture oddity by Modigliani, a study of Jean Cocteau, the French actor-writer-producer, and it is a face of such frightening aspect that when Eleanor Holm saw it she burst into tears and said she would not stay in the same house with it.

Only by swearing to hide it in his own private room was Billy able to placate her. After seeing the portrait, one has the hunch that maybe the logic was all on Eleanor's side. Modigliani's Cocteau is a weird thing with cross eyes and a neck like a swan.

THE house itself blossoms around a magnificent Adams spiraling stairway. The dining room is in English paneling, with an open fire and mantel effects in porcelain and jade which came from Italy and Hindustan. John Murray Anderson, who produces all of Billy's extravaganzas, including his new Aquacade, which will open this year on May 11, was stunned by it. "None of your friends will fit in here, Billy," he warned, "unless you give them powdered wigs and satin britches."

Billy's own room compared to the lavish guest rooms and Mrs. Rose's private boudoir, is a mere monk's cell. Besides a desk in the French Empire style, a bed, and the portrait of Cocteau there is nothing. Those guest beds, by the way, are only 13 inches high, but any of them would sleep the Marx bros and Primo Carnera.

In sum, life on the East River may not be as exciting as Mark Twain pictured it on the Mississippi, but it is a darned sight more comfortable.

How would you like to live in a house where you could wake up every morning, stick your foot out from under the covers and nudge a Rembrandt with your big toe?

Health And Diet

Scruffy Hands Sign of Spring.

—By DR. CLENDENING

THE OLD ladies used to say along about this time of year that they would clear up Pap's scruffy hands and Aunt Minnie's sore tongue as soon as "I kin git me out and pick me a mess o' greens." Behind that homely wisdom is a whole volume of scientific lore on nutrition.

The situation does not come up as often now as it used to, but still we have reports that spring deficiency diseases go on, and I would warrant after the hard winter we have had in the south this year there will be quite a crop of them.

Pellagra Problem.

The scruffy hands and the sore tongue are mentioned by me especially because the disease called "pellagra," which is a sort of hodge-podge of deficiency food conditions, is the result of a diet of preserved food with no fresh food elements. It was at one time as serious a health problem in the south as malaria and hookworm. From reports made in medical journels from Tennessee and Alabama, I gather it is still a problem.

In most of our gities, and even villages, it is not so often seen because modern methods of transportation and preservation of food have given us a winter-long supply of fresh meat, freshly made bread, potatoes, green vegetables and fruits. In rural communities, where people are living on salt pork, corn pone and sorghum molasses, it still occurs with considerable frequency.

It can be prevented and it will respond in treatment to a diet of fresh meat and potatoes. Yeast also has been suggested as a remedy, but none of these is as successful as a chemical substance, which is probably a vitamin, nicotinic acid.

Relief in Small Doses.

Very small doses of nicotine acid will relieve symptoms. The condition is particularly likely to occur in middle-aged and elderly people, and minor signs of it must be recognized and treated. Grandma's idea of scruffy hands and sore tongue is a very good criterion. Digestive and nervous symptoms of all kinds may be basically pellagra.

For instance, a 55-year-old woman had widely assorted muscular pains and was highly nervous and excitable. She thought her husband was unfaithful and threatened to kill him. All of these unhappy symptoms disappeared under the administration of nicotinic acid.

Likewise, a 35-year-old man had symptoms which seemed to correspond exactly with ulcer of the stomach. A 40-year-old woman felt perfectly well except that she did not like the color of her tongue: it was redder than normal. On taking nicotinic acid, it resumed the normal color.

Weakness, malaise and easy fatiguability are suggestive symptoms. In other words, spring fever.

Listen, World!

There Aren't Any "Big Moments."

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

HE'S WAITING for his Big Moment. He has been waiting for thirty-six years. What sort of a Big Moment?

He doesn't exactly know. He had never made any definite plans, but—something swell! Some gorgeous stroke of luck that would suddenly give him his place in the sun.

Maybe a wonderful job. Or a chance to go to Europe. Or perhaps someone will realize that he can Really Write. Or offer him a position to sing over the radio. Or leave him a few thousands in their will. Or ask him to run for Congress.

He isn't choosey. Almost any kind of a Big Moment will do, just so long as it removes the shabbiness and monotony from life—fills the days with fizz—gives him His Chance at last.

Way back in his 'teens he began to dream of that Big Moment. He didn't do so very well in school. What was the use of plugging away at Math, and English Lit, and Chemistry, when he'd probably never use a word of it? The Big Shots out in the world—they weren't depending for success on their old Math lessons. Some of 'em hadn't even gone to school. No; they'd had a Lucky Break. Then they'd gone booming.

That was the way it was going to be with him. Some day he'd have his Lucky Break, too. In the meantime, why worry? He didn't.

Then came the twenties. He expected his Big Moment to arrive 'most any day. So what was the use of starting some mean little job that led nowhere? That's how fellows spoiled their chances—getting off on side tracks—getting out of touch with the Main Stem. He wasn't going to make a mistake like that; not him. He'd take his time.

And suppose they did call him a loafer? Well, he'd make them eat their words. Just wait and see!

Then, presently, though he knew it was all wrong, he had to take a job anyway. Queer, how your Own Folks failed to understand you—refused to give you a hand.

So he took the job in Max's Emporium—shipping department. But he knew it was 'way beneath him, so he didn't pay much attention to it. Just went along killing time, with his mind on that Lucky Break which was bound to come any day.

But he's thirty-six now, and his Big Moment hasn't come yet!

Sometimes he gets discouraged. These last sixteen years have been pretty dreary. One small, stupid job after another, and not one of them "meant a thing." But never a Big Chance that was really worth his attention.

And he can't understand why. No fellow was ever more eager to make good than he is, but he can't seem to get the breaks. Yet other fellows, that everyone knows are nothing but Big Stupes or Downright Saps—why, they get no end of slick chances.

Yes, it's certainly strange. But he's sure that something will turn up. His Big Moment will come yet. In the meantime, he's waiting.

And he'll probably be waiting when the judgment trump sounds.

For he hasn't learned—and he doesn't want to learn — that THERE AREN'T ANY BIG MOMENTS; ONLY LITTLE ONES.

Little Moments, to be used as they come along.

Tiresome little Moments, filled with discouraging drudgery and discipline.

Despised little Moments, which, we feel, are getting us nowhere—moments that seem to our rebellious souls to be a downright waste of life.

Yet in the end, all those little moments add up into big moment—and we can't get our big moment any other way.

GOOD LUCK ISN'T AN ACCIDENT. IT'S THE BY-PRODUCT OF ALL OUR SWEAT AND TEARS, OUR PRAYERS AND CURSES AND HARD LICKS.

Our Breaks don't "just happen." WE ACCUMULATE THEM.

IF YOU HAVEN'T USED YOUR LITTLE MOMENT, IT'S A CINCH YOU WON'T HAVE ANY BIG ONES.

Our Pond

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

BEHIND OUR HOUSE a dam across the gully makes a spring-fed pond forty feet across and four feet deep at the deepest end. A ten foot log extends out into the water at the eastern side and across the sluiceway where the water pours over the dam is a rough plank footbridge. An apple tree shades the rocky bank toward the north, while below the dam stands a young willow and a host of watersprouts.

When first we moved here we debated whether or not to drain the pond, as dangerous to children. However my wife and I both grew up on farms with streams and after thinking it over, we decided that the pond would be a valuable bit of educative environment. So far our theory seems to be holding water.

Our oldest child fell into the pond during the first cold snap when ice was a half-inch thick. She is tall, and scrambled out, abashed and chagrined, to the delighted shouts of her small brothers. We believe all the children profited by her experience.

On a warmer day recently, the youngsters dipped tadpoles from the pond with a dip net improvised from a forked stick and an old piece of window curtain. The chickens hovered near to gobble up the catch. They chased each other about the yard, in the wake of each wriggling tidbit. Since then I have seen the two white hens nabbing tadpoles for themselves out of the shallow water where watercress is growing green.

One child brought in a mussel, still alive. Another found a snail. Our neighbors tell us that as recently as last year the pool was populated by speckled trout and black bass that leaped into the air before a rain or at dusk on summer evenings. They were more than a foot long. Alas, someone has eaten them!

Water lily pads are there, and spots of sedge. There may be turtles in the muddy bottom. After recent rains when for two days the spring was out of its channel, the falls down by the dam roared and there was a mist of spray as the water tumbled through.

Who buys a spring buys all the water that flows from it—and limpid flowing water is the most prized natural asset on our little farm. This little pond will add much picturesqueness and enjoyment to our summer. (No doubt our friends will hear more about it.)

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Strangest sight in the bitter senate battle over the Hatch bill was the love-feast between "Dear Alben" Barkley and "Happy" Chandler. Two years ago they plastered each other from one end of Kentucky to the other with fiery charges of pressure politics. Chandler had denounced Barkley for using WPA votes, barred by the present Hatch Act, while Barkley denounced Chandler for using his giant state machine, which would be barred by the new Hatch Act. But now they both decided to go pure.

Prior to this unified purity the two senators had a little talk. Barkley sought out his one-time rival and asked him if he intended to support the new Hatch bill to keep state office-holders out of politics.

"Alben, I'll be right in there alongside of you," replied "Happy." "I'm for this bill 100 per cent. I don't want that state highway gang doing to me what I tried to do to you."

Chandler was referring to J. Lyter Donaldson, Kentucky Highway Commissioner, who has been threatening to run against "Happy" this year.

Note—When a colleague jestingly asked Senator Pat Harrison if his "gang was playing politics," the genial Mississippian grinned and retorted, "They'd better be."

NLRB Vote.

THE hotly-debated Smith amendments to the National Labor Relations Act are headed for stormy weather in the house labor committee, judging from the shellacking they got in their initial consideration.

For the first time this year, all 21 members of the committee were present when it met behind closed doors. Chairman Mary Norton promptly put them on the spot by asking each his opinion about the drastic proposals authored by Rep. Howard Smith, Virginia anti-unionite who is chairman of the special committee investigating the labor board.

Result of the secret poll was, Ten (nine Democrats and one Republican) were flatly opposed to all the amendments; five favored them; five voiced partial approval; one refused to commit himself. The individual members of these groups were:

Flatly opposed: Democrats Mrs. Norton, Kent Keller, Matt Dunn, Reuben T. Wood (president of the Missouri State Federation of Labor), John Lesinski, Albert Thomas, Frank Fries, Lawrence Connery (brother and successor to the late Bill Connery, co-author with Senator Wagner of the Labor Act), and Thomas D'Alesandro; and Richard Welch, liberal California Republican.

Favorable: Republicans Fred Hartley, Chester Gross, and Clare Hoffman; Democrats Graham Barden (author of a bill to emasculate the Wage-Hour Act), and W. F. Norell of Arkansas, elected as a New Dealer in 1938

Partially favorable: Democrats Robert Ramspeck and Jennings Randolph; Republicans Clyde Smith, Bruce Barton, and Gerald Landis.

"No comment": Democrat Dow Harter of Akron, O., elected with CIO support.

The decision of the labor committee on the amendments is of key importance. If the committee vetoes them it will block consideration by the house except by unprecedented measures. Also, if the committee rewrites the amendments, which is likely, it will be difficult for their backers to jam them through.

In New Hampshire.

ASSISTANT Secretary of the Treasury Sullivan, the efficient gentleman who so neatly sewed up New Hampshire Democrats for a third term, says he can go even further. If Europe and business continue as they are today, he says he can carry New Hampshire for Roosevelt next November.

Only time can tell whether Sullivan is right, but he is the man who helped Jim Farley be 100 per cent right regarding Roosevelt's re-election in 1936.

Farley predicted that FDR would carry 46 states—including the very doubtful state of New Hampshire—and before he made that prediction he had phoned John Sullivan.

"I'm giving out my final statement," he said, "and I can't afford to be wrong. What's the final word?"

"We're going to win," replied Sullivan.

Farley remonstrated, asked him if he was absolutely sure, finally issued his statement.

On election night, Sullivan phoned Farley from New Hampshire at 9 p. m. to report that the state looked safe for Roosevelt. Farley asked for hourly bulletins, and just before midnight, Sullivan phoned again to say that New Hampshire had a margin of 2,500 for Roosevelt. Then Sullivan went to bed.

At 3 a. m. his phone rang. It was Senator Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania, in Farley's New York headquarters. "What are you doing in bed at this time?" he asked. "Don't you know that Jim has staked his whole reputation on New Hampshire, and while you're asleep they could steal enough votes to defeat us."

Sullivan remonstrated that the only uncounted districts were absolutely safe, but Guffey demanded that he put guards around the ballot boxes all night until the final returns were in. So Sullivan phoned his henchmen, then reported back to Farley in New York.

"New Hampshire's absolutely safe for Roosevelt," he reported, "and before you hang up put your friend Guffey on the line. I want to tell you both something. I think you two are the most selfish birds in the United States. Here you have 45 states for Roosevelt and you keep the entire state of New Hampshire up just to get one more."

Merry-Go-Round.

WHETHER his membership on the Dies committee has anything to do with it is conjectural, but it is a fact that Representative Noah Mason has no opposition in either the GOP or Democratic primary in his Illinois district . . . Handsome Representative Jennings Randolph, who through his chairmanship of the District of Columbia committee is known as "mayor" of Washington, is being strongly urged to run for governor of West Virginia, but is holding off because of the bitter factional split among local Democrats. Only 37, a former newsman and professor, Randolph has his eye on the U. S. Senate . . . Speaking of horse-and-buggy days, Henry Wallace points out that his father, Secretary of Agriculture under Harding, was the last member of the cabinet to give up a team of horses. This was late in 1921 . . . The only druggist in the House is Carl T. Durham of North Carolina.

SHOWS HOUSING FACILITIES HERE ABOVE AVERAGE

Survey Reveals 91 Per Cent in Dwellings Considered Adequate or Better.

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the eighth of a series of articles on the work and findings of the Real Property Inventory, better known as the RPI, conducted by the WPA in Mansfield.

By HAROLD K. MANSFIELD
Director, Real Property Inventory

Adequacy or inadequacy in terms of overcrowding is determined for each individual dwelling unit by dividing the number of rooms in the unit by the total number of people living in that unit. Our first step will be to group together the homes according to the number of occupants.

Almost a third of the people in the Mansfield survey area live in households of two persons or less. There are 671 dwelling units or 5.5 per cent of the total occupied by only one person while 3334 units or 27.5 per cent contain two persons. There are three persons per household in 3108 of our dwelling units or 25.7 per cent of the total.

This means that 58.7 per cent of all our dwellings contain three people or less. This is high in comparison to 50.5 per cent, the average for 203 representative cities throughout the nation.

Four persons live in 19.5 per cent of our dwellings which accounts for 2360 homes and compares closely to the national average of 20.4 per cent. However when it comes to large families we are below the average. There are 1332 dwelling units or 11 per cent composed of five persons as compared to 13.1 per cent. Dwelling units with six or more people in them number 1309 or 10.8 per cent while the average reported in the 203 representative cities is 16 per cent.

The above gives us a breakdown as to the size of the groups in our homes. A preceding article pointed out that 52.2 per cent of our dwelling units contain five or six rooms, 25.3 per cent have seven or more rooms per unit. The number of persons in a dwelling unit and the number of rooms in the dwelling unit are both factors in determining the adequacy of a home in terms of crowding.

'Spacious' Units Plentiful.

A home or dwelling unit with one-half or less persons per room (i. e. four persons in an eight room home) is regarded as very spacious. Mansfield has 5312 such homes or 43.9 per cent of the total. The country-wide average is 30.8 per cent.

A dwelling with half to three-quarters persons per room (i. e. three persons in a four room dwelling) is regarded as spacious. There are 3291 homes or 27.2 per cent that have that ratio between size of dwelling unit and number of occupants.

From three-fourths to one person per room is considered adequate housing. There are 2461 homes or 20.3 per cent of our homes tthat are adequate according to this defination. Thus 91.4 per cent of Mansfield's families are housed in dwellings considered adequate or better than that. In the 203 representative cities, only 83.4 per cent of their total homes were classed as adequate or better.

Of crowded homes—one to two persons per room—Mansfield has 947 or 7.8 per cent of her dwellings, while in the 203 representative cities 15.3 per cent of homes were reported as being crowded.

A dwelling unit is defined as being overcrowded when it houses more than two persons per room. We have only 98 such homes which is 0.8 per cent of the total. One and three-tenths per cent is the national percentage figure.

In some homes a crowded condition exists because of temporary "doubling up" in which two or more families live together in order to reduce expenses. There were 448 dwelling units or 3.7 per cent of the total in which more than one family was reported. Of this group, 13 dwellings contained 3 or more families per unit. Three and seven-tenths per cent is low in comparison to 5.8 per cent reported for the Northeast section of the United States. Of the 448 dwelling units, 290 or 64.7 per cent are owner occupied.

Most homes are occupied solely by the family owning or renting them. Only 1068 or 8.8 per cent of all dwellings accept roomers. Of this group, 734 or 6 per cent of the total homes have one roomer each.

Two roomers live in each of 206 dwellings while 93 units have three to four roomers. Thirty-three homes have five or more roomers.

A slightly larger per cent of tenant-occupied dwellings offer accomodations for roomers than do owner-occupied dwellings.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

WE believe the charge we make for dry cleaning a garment is a very fair and reasonable one, especially considering the character and thoroughness of our service. A job done by us will come through the most critical examination—for cleaning, for pressing, for the little minor repairs which we do free. Just a case of the old, old truth n business—you get what you pay for.
